The copy is exceptionally strong, data-driven, and maintains a consistent, authoritative tone that aligns with the 'engineered for profit' theme. It effectively uses social proof through WhatsApp voice notes and specific performance metrics to build high trust.

Tone & voice 2

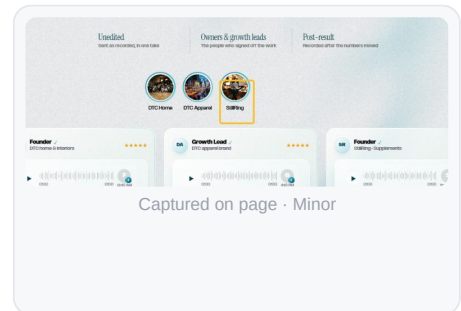

1. The tab labels are inconsistent: "DTC Home" and "DTC Apparel" are categories, while "Still-Ring" is a specific brand name.

Minor

"StillRing"

2. The phrase "Almost There!" feels overly casual and "cutesy" compared to the highly professional, data-obsessed tone of the rest of the page.

Suggestion

3. The CTA "GET IN TOUCH GET IN TOUCH" contains redundant repeated text, likely due to a scrolling design effect that reads poorly in a static context.

4. The phrase "Or add us manually " in the "Preferred on Google" section is vague; it's unclear what the user is adding or where.

5. The name "Rocky Paroky" and title "Web Designer & Founder" appear without context, making it unclear if this is a testimonial, a team member, or a partner.

Minor

TRY

Add a lead-in like "Designed by" or "Partnered with" to provide context.

6. The heading "Eight accounts, eight levers" is somewhat cryptic and relies on marketing jargon ("levers") that may not be immediately clear to all users without reading the subtext.

Suggestion
